Goal :

To provide a platform for updating practicing physicians on newer advances in Hematology addressing practical challenges in the management.

Objectives :

- Expose practicing physicians of Kolhapur to latest update in the field of Hematology through expert faculty.
- Give residents in the medical field opportunity to learn from leaders in the field of Hematology.
- Provide a platform for interactive learning of challenges and innovations in Hematology for both residents and practitioners.
- To create a starting point for continuous academic collaboration with invited faculty.

To fulfil the above objectives much thought has gone into selection of the faculty and the topics being discussed.

We are grateful to all faculty and members of organizing committee for their cooperation and efforts in helping us fulfil the above objectives.

Dear Colleagues,

Over the past few decades, hematology research innovations have resulted in significant improvements in care for patients with blood disorders. Despite this immense and remarkable progress in understanding and treating of hematologic diseases, substantial challenges are still there, hence there is huge scope, importance as well as requirement of updates in hematology for practice, which will eventually improve the quality of life with better treatment and diagnosis options.

Frequent advances and evidence-based studies impact the management of even a commonly treated Hematological disorders. However, clinical evaluation and experience are still invaluable as the disease rarely reflects descriptions and presentations described in texts.

Focus Areas: Challenges in practical management of hematological disorders are of concern to all of us. Peer-discussions are vital and collaborative learning translates best into practice. This update focuses on key areas of Laboratory management of bleeding and hemorrhagic disorder, Stem cell therapy current scenario, Refractory anemia, and other hematological situations and to discuss most recent issues and developments in Future of Hematology.

Department of Medicine, D. Y. Patil Medical College with Deccan Hematology Group is glad to have designed National platform to interact and collaborate with renowned speakers and experts in the field, requesting all of you to block your dates for 8th April 2018 and enjoy the academic feast.

The organizing committee is glad to inform you that along with other sponsors, Medical Council of India has also sanctioned part of funding for the event.
